

Horse, Years From Now

(McDonald / McAlinden)

Lights under the sky

Reminding me how

We'll meet again tomorrow.

Imagining years from now

With the backdrop ever changing,

We'd remain the only constant.

I was fine trusting you.

You were clever and inspired,

Building all the bombs that I threw.

The years from now we spoke of then have come and gone.

What I've done out of fear of being alone.

But I won't leave, I won't leave the one I love.

The sky stretches out

Like a tablecloth above us

Laid out with a priceless silver.

Now I look to St. Jude.

You said we're in this together,

'Til we're dust or ether, always.
