

Howard Jones, Someone You Need

(Duet With Duncan Sheik)

The streets here are empty all the people went home well, I was just wondering if you're alone So how you've been lately?
I hear you're a little down and do you think maybe I could come around?

I could be someone you need wrap you in blankets on dark winter nights
be your best confidante
pay the right compliment
I could be someone you need

We had coffee on 3rd street and talked for a time I still have your letter I know every line I hope this aint coming from way out of the blue cause I got to thinking and I thought of you

I could be someone you need keep you from burning in hot summer sun roll you in clover a coat for your shoulder
I could be someone you need

You need someone there when the world isn't fair or its all just too good to be true Someone to care for you issue a dare to you when the moment comes you need to fly, fly.

I could be someone you need
wrap you in blankets on dark winter nights
be your best confidante
pay the right compliment
I could be someone you need