

Hundred Inch Shadow, look at yourself you contest lack of better things to do with no duties

'cause parents always pay your bills it's so easy to protest raging at someone's mistakes living on your mum's account with foolish doubts

when it's time, you can rise but to me it's no surprise the more you preach, the more i laugh all you said to me is crap behind masks, you ain't tough only words are not enough before judging someone else look at yourself

every time when you're giving us your speech i start to laugh
'cause you're too young, too dumb to teach when you'll start you adult life you'll see differences between us you'll see problems that i've got will you fight?
