

Hybrid, True To Form

It's a little too easy to live and learn
But those breaks are scarce
So take some time out to look back and see how you fared

The right is always the wrong
and the short's always the long
The hardest thing about refrain is now I can only save face

To deny yourself is so true to form
You spend most of your days wishing you were never born
To deny yourself is so true to form
You spend most of your days wishing you were never born

Face down in what you know you'll never come up for air Close the door
I've had about as much as I can bear

The right is always the wrong
and the short's always the long
The hardest thing about refrain
is now I can only save face

To deny yourself is so true to form
You spend most of your days wishing you were never born
To deny yourself is so true to form
You spend most of your days wishing you were never born