

Ivy, An Ordinary Man

Sprawled across the bedroom floor
Dripping sweat from every pore
Helplessly you reach for me
But I'm already, I'm already gone
Don't you look beautiful?
Where's that smirk I've had to face
Crawled away in sweet disgrace
Now you say you need me so
Don't tell me what I already know
Don't you look beautiful?
Don't you look beautiful begging me to finish what I start
Open mouth and aching fingers
Bloodshot eyes so filled with fear
If only you could see yourself from here
Don't you look beautiful?
Don't you look beautiful?
Don't you look beautiful
begging me to finish what I start
Don't you look beautiful?
Isn't it beautiful
begging me to finish what I start
begging me to finish what I start
