

Ivy, This Are The Things About You

You can really stare.
You can stare a thousand miles
and yet still I know exactly what you see.
You can really care.
You can care about the things that happen
to the strangers that you never meet.

These are the things about you.
These are the things about you.
These are the things about you I know.

There is so much here.
There is so much that defines you
in the things you keep inside and never show.
It is really clear.
There is more behind that smile
as you're walking down the driveway in the snow.

These are the things about you.
These are the things about you.
These are the things about you I know.