Jaci Velasquez, Shelter

Mark Heimermann, Dan Huff & amp; Wayne Kirkpatrick How the mind can wander How the heart can stray Suddenly you're on the edge of darkness How it makes me ponder How I'm led away Down a path that leaves me worn and tarnished Battling with the will within I have known all along That I should lean on You Cause I'm never strong enough To fight it on my own CHORUS: Shelter me The ways of the world are at my feet Shelter me From the desires that deceive You are the fortress I need Shelter me How the mind can wonder How the heart can change When you set your sights on holiness And though at times you falter It's the only way You can find a place of peace to rest CHORUS You will never leave me stranded Fending for myself When the enemy advances You are there to help Standing in the gap for me Whenever I grow weak You are my deliverer The refuge that I seek I should lean on You Cause I'm never strong enough To fight it on my own How the mind can wander How the heart can stray Suddenly you're on the edge of darkness How it makes me ponder How I'm led away Down a path that leaves me worn and tarnished Battling with the will within I have known all along That I should lean on You Cause I'm never strong enough To fight it on my own CHORUS
