

Jackie Greene, When You're Walking Away

Well I aint gonna ask you what youre doing here I know you got your reasons but honey, they aint ever clear And maybe its just better that you never stay
I love you more when youre walking away

I aint gonna ask you whats on your mind Its hard enough for my own head to unwind The world is getting smaller, each and every day and I love you more when youre walking away

When youre walking away baby, i get high like i never could you dont stay, although sometimes I wish you would everythings clear when youre not here

Lonesome is a candle in the night a one-room bedroom window crying-light you take me for granted, but baby thats ok
i love you more when youre walking away

baby I get high like i never could you dont stay, honey sometimes i wish you would everythings clear when youre not here

take what you can get and then disapear ah but thats alright mama, you can leave me any day cause i love you more when youre walking away
