

Jessie Murph, How Could You

You said you were sober
So I let you come over
Your words pulled me closer
But your words fuck me over

I kept on denying
So you kept on trying
Yeah you went too far for closure
Went too far fucked me over

I could just lie here
Say it's okay
When I want to rip all the doors off this place

Set it on fire
And just walk away
So I can feel anything else but this weight

Cause I let you in
When I needed space
And you crossed the line
When I pushed you away

How could you
How could you

I more than regret you
You've convinced yourself I let you
The better version of me never met you
Never let you in my bedroom

All those shitty lines
And crooked blinds
And cheap red wine stains
Threaten suicide
To change my mind
And keep me afraid

You want me to lie here
And say it's okay
When I want to rip all the doors off this place

Set it on fire
And just walk away
So I can feel anything else but this weight

Cause I let you in
When I needed space
And you crossed a line when I pushed you away

How could you

I once loved a liar
Cause he knew my name
Would rewrite the story
And make me to blame
How could you
