

Jessy Greene, Grand Conspiracy

Somewhere in the night
Someone is dancing alone
I loved you more, then my heart would allow.
So she left, my heart took I
Hostage
Not once, but a million times
A million times.

Where are, where are you now, where are you now?

Beware of the signs, take heed of the blackbirds
cry
I couldnt hear and got lost in the crowd.
Conspire to pretend, try not to guard me in Never once did I smile.

Where are, where are you now, where are you now?
In this grand conspiracy
Not easy to believe
When I found you
I lost me.

Where are, where are you now, where are you now?

Stars turn like falling leaves
Brings back the days I was a thief
Never though I was clever.
Just had something to lose, caught myself not a moment
too soon
Picked last Kicked hardest.

Where are, where are you now, where are you now?
In this grand conspiracy
Not easy to believe
When I found you I lost me.

Where are, where are you now, where are you now?