Jewel, Stranger Enter From The East

I went out a-wandering Beneath an unknown sky The heavens all shook violently You caught my eye

A strange fruit fell And struck me to the core My heart became a single flame It wanted nothing more

Stranger, enter from the east Stranger, step inside this place And hold me.....hold me

The clock became a bullet hole Cruel and unkind It hurt me with it's second hand Alone another night

Stranger, enter from the east

Stranger, step inside this place

Blue.....is that you?
Well, don't bother knocking on my door this time
Blue.....
Go be true for someone else
There's no room inside this heart of mine
My heart has four empty rooms
Three wait for lightning and one waits for you

I must have you all to myself Feel the full weight of your skin I'll hollow out my insides To place you in

Stranger, enter from the east Stranger, step inside this place And hold me......hold me Hold me
