Jill Sobule, Life Goes On Without You

We get over things faster than we think A week, a month, a year, I'll get over you The sadness dies, the pain forgotten And sometimes along with the better times

I must remember this Life goes on without you I must remember this Now I'm alone I must remember this Life goes on without you I must rememger this I'll love again

We get over things better than we think We grieve, we move on, I'll get over you The anger fades, indifference will rise And something will fill up the empty space

(chorus)

It's just a matter, a matter of time You fell out of love, but so will I It's just a matter of

Must remember this Life goes on without you I must remember this I'll love again
