

Jimmie's Chicken Shack, Nothing

did you ever really know the word inside of you was changing you will always find the time to defend your lies so true and those time you will ignore my times of need you are forgive still you make it clear not one thing that is happening to you always absorbed in the sights and always one step to the right how does it feel to feel nothing

how does it feel to feel nothing
how does it feel to feel nothing
when your world starts to rearrange
how does it feel to feel nothing
how does it feel to feel nothing
how does it feel to feel nothing when your world starts to change
when your world starts to rearrange

you will always find the words to use my words against me are you powered by the line outline your heart so true and though times you will ignore your times of need you are forgiven see you make things if not one thing that is happening to you always absorbed in the sights and always one step to the right

how does it feel to feel nothing
how does it feel to feel nothing
how does it feel to feel nothing when your world starts to turn and change
how does it feel to feel nothing
how does it feel to feel nothing
how does it feel to feel nothing when your world starts to spin
when your world starts to rearrange house of people that will confort you when you come in from the cold and all you see is growing older mindless people will stop and say deny all to win, when will we begin strange how this may seem tomorrow until we dig in

how much more will we wait
strange how this may seem tomorrow
until we dig in
how much more will we wait
how much more will we wait
and how much more will we wait
and how much more will we wait
and how much more will we wait
and its all strange
and its all strange
and its all strange
and its all strange, strange and i said, how much more will we wait until we begin until we begin
how much more will we wait
until we begin
how much more will we wait begin

how much more will we wait
until we begin
how much more will we wait
until we begin
how much more will we wait