

Joan Baez, In the morning light

Well there you stand A figure at my door
And shadows fall On those that are no more
And each time