

Jody Grind, We've Had It

Truth is like a crystal
Turn it any way, the light shines through
And my light is you
Evil is the thistle
As it pricks, the wall will separate
Between love and hate

Humanity's our only name
If something's wrong we're all to blame
Some will never change
They like it as it is
[Long as they don't see amiss]
He who casts a blind eye blinds his mind's eye
And when two hundred years have passed
Maybe they'll realise at last
We've had it right from the start
We've had it right from the start
We've had it right from the start

Truth is like a crystal
Turning any way, the light shines through
And my light is you
Evil is the thistle
As it pricks, the wall will separate
Between love and hate

Humanity's our only name
If something's wrong we're all to blame
But some will never change
They like it as it is
[Long as they don't see amiss]
He who casts a blind eye blinds his mind's eye
And when two hundred years have passed
Maybe they'll realise at last
We had it right from the start
We had it right from the start
We had it right from the start