

John Porter, Where The Sun Never Shines

It's been a long, strange Winter
I've been freezing inside
I gave the cold, shoulders' cover up
It's getting harder to hide
Well I'm packing up my suitcase
Feels like there's nothing inside
I got more in my pockets
A lot more in my mind

Taking a ride, I'm taking a ride
To where the sun never shines
Taking a ride, I'm taking a ride
To where the sun never shines

I see the sun rise in my left eye
See the clouds drift in my right eye
Yours sweet smile won't keep me
Cause I'm just passing by

Taking a ride, I'm taking a ride
To where the sun never shines
Taking a ride, I'm taking a ride
To where the sun never shines
