

Jon Bon Jovi, Love Lies

I was lost, then I found you
I never thought it would be this way Showed you my heart, I left it unguarded like a thief in the night you stole it away Now you're gone, the pain goes on and on
I still hear you whispering to me through the shadows of the night
Love lies, you're just a victim of the headlines
You're running on into a cold night
You're just a number of the love lies
All alone you call it survival he lost at love to a stranger's lines Walking the streets, searching with vengeance for a face that he dreams of night after night
Time goes on, all signs of life stolen, simple dreams were all broken Best of times become desperation but how many tears must you cry to survive
Love lies, you're just a victim of the headlines
You're running on into a cold night
Just a number of the love lies
Love lies, you're just another victim of the headlines
You're running on into a cold night
Just a number of the love lies
They met late one night in the city
Both men knew only one would stay Scratched a picture of a heart on a bullet and took his life away
Love lies, you're just another victim of the headlines
You're running on into a cold night
Just a number of the love lies
Love lies, you're just a victim of the headlines
You're running on into a cold night
Just a number of the love lies
