

Jon McLaughlin, Once Again

I hear the words coming out your mouth
As we talk about it once again
I cant believe all the words you said
Turned into regret once again
So dont tell me what went wrong
To make it feel so wrong once again
I had a half a mind to work things out
But its too late now once again
How can we make it when youre walking away
How can we make it when youre walking
How can we make it when youre walking away
If I stay or if I go to you its all the same
I had a feeling I as dead and gone
Nowhere to belong once again
I couldve swore you were just in my arms
Now youre just in a song once again
For me Im walking on a worn path
Prayin my feet dont walk so fast
In a tunnel with no light I stumble on the wrong side
Of all I thought was right
I try to look through my eyes but theyre filled with tears
And the lines our love drew all start to smear
So I use my words just to keep you here
But Im speaking of things that you just cant feel