

Joshua Radin, Do You Wanna...

You're sitting in your chair no ones around your lights are turned down low and your skin feels about to tear and you is no sound and all i am is frightened for you now 'cause you run and how can I show you that you're done you're on your knees
picking up the pieces from your past but there's nothing more to gather holding on to moments that won't last or would you rather end it all do you wanna?
sitting there is him he has your eyes calling you to somehow join them and you're writhin' in your skin and buyin' his lies not realizing that you're home won't you come home and how can I show you that you're done
do you wanna?
no one believes you smile alone you wanna retrieve your high on the phone but when you hang up all I wanna do is help you to pick up the pieces from your past but there's nothing more to gather
do you wanna?
