

Julia Fordham, I Can Tell You Anything

written by Julia Fordham & Simon Climie

I used to pride myself on always being one step ahead of the game I thought I had it in line thought I knew what was mine and then you came And unraveled every fibre from beneath my solid ground

I'm feeling like I can't look down
I'm scared of what I'll find
I can tell you anything
but what's really on my mind
I can tell you anything
but what's really on my mind

I'm so tempted to lay the whole complete truth at your finger tips If I gave you it straight would my secret be safe behind your lips?
Or would my guarded notion crumble in your care?

I'm feeling like I can't look down
I'm scared of what I'll find
I can tell you anything
but what's really on my mind
I can tell you anything
but what's really on my mind

And sometimes I stall to catch myself From sharing all these silent things I've felt

I'm feeling like I can't look down
I'm scared of what I'll find
I can tell you anything
but what's really on my mind
I can tell you anything
but what's really on my mind
