

Julia Fordham, Swept

I've said things I shouldn't have said I might break your heart and my promises swept up in the moment of it all

I keep meaning to hold something back people always say to do that It isn't in my nature in fact at all

I swear I never was so cynical
It must have crept up on me miracle of miracles, that i won't always be you've said things you shouldn't have said you might break my heart and your promises

swept up in the moment of it all

I swear I never was so cynical
It must have crept up on me
Miracle of miracles, that I won't always be

I swear I never was so cynical
It must have crept up on me
miracle of miracles, that I won't always be

we've said things that we might regret we might break our word and slowly forget how sweet it felt when we were swept up in it all

swept, when we were swept, when we were swept up in it all
swept, when we were swept, when we were swept up in it all