

Justincase, After You

When your hand touches mine, and when your eye catches mine
When your smile grabs my soul, and your heart holds mine
When your hair's so soft, and your lips are like gold
It's when your face is ART, and you're VanGogh
That's when I'll ask...

Is there life after you?
Is there love after you?
Is there light after you?
But you're mine, so let 'em go

You're the horizon in my sky,
Now I'm drowning in your eyes
And I'll write your name in the sand, and protect it from the tide
So cut my lip once more before good-byes
Then I'll ask...

Is there life after you?
Is there love after you?
Is there light after you?
But you're mine, so let 'em go

I will, I will, I will find you when you're gone
I will, I will, I will find you, yes, I'll find you
I will, I will find you when you're gone

If I was your sunflower, i'd point to your sunny face
I'd be roots, to find your tears and drive them away so i'll cross those tracks, and i'll give all that's in me
to make you happy
And then i'll ask...

Is there life after you?
Is there love after you?
Is there light after you?
But you're mine, so let it show....