Kaskade, Distance

Ive had enough of this long distance So Im driving down to see you for the day Stay awhile, see your smile And when its time to go You give me a kiss before I get away

In spite of the obvious The distance of the cry We want to get on with us But its only by and by That we discern the me from we Giving only selflessly

So lve had the time to think about things driving But Im not sure just how clear my thoughts have been Distance makes my thinking more erratic than the norm Missing you knows nowhere, just when
