

Kelly Willis, World Without You

I I cry alone in the night now that you're gone
And I know I'll always be blue
How can I live here in this world without you

The sun rises and falls and I don't notice at all
The love that we had has fallen through
How can I live here in this world without you

When I dream oh my dreams are all the same
You hold me in your arms again
But I know they'll never come true
How can I live here in this world without you
[guitar]

When I dream oh my dreams are all the same
You hold me in your arms again
You must know what you've done
You've left me broken and good for no one
Oh how it hurts to feel like I do
How can I live here in this world without you
How can I live here in this world without you