

Kensington, What Lies Ahead

cold and broken down it's all I knew I let corner me in and hide where my tracks lead now I am waking up and all I do is getting lost in the past to find where I'd first hear that I was never gonna be somebody that I was never gonna feel light come around and they rise again as I am told that I should see red now and to fear what lies ahead now but I know that I will do everything for you again and I bet now you will see that you will burn what you don't need here and I'll know it's alright /3x

how I faded out cause I never knew that all the thorn in my bed were passed down and taught me

that I was never gonna be somebody
that I was never gonna feel light come around
and they rise again as I am told that I should see what if the years won't come it's caught up in my head what if I'll be outrun? it haunts me down instead it has gone one way it was bound to break and it all reminds me of a time I fooled around but now I am fighting