

Kevin Rudolf, I song

She walks in the room
In her mind she`s far away
I can see her emptiness
But i just don`t feel her pain
The love is gone
The only thing she was living for
Mister i`ll never leave you
Walked right out the door, oh.
It`s killing me inside
The way i`ve seen her change
She writes her life story
But she can`t turn the page
I hold her had, try to take her
But she pulls away
Shades go down, lights go out
There`s nothing left to say
So i`m singing
I want it all
But i take just a little
I feel her touch
Then i need some more
We get high just to try
And relieve the pain
But a voice inside reminds me
There must be a better way, oh.
So i leave the room
`bout halfway down the hall
I turn around, she screams out
What, you don`t believe in love.
Said i`ll never be
Who i was when i was seventeen
Cause every time i walk away
I leave a piece of me.
Now i understand
What they were trying to say
Life goes by too fast
And people change
But she just wants to be
Who she always was
But you can`t change
A single thing
You might as well
Look up and sing
I, i just take a little
I then i need some more
We get high to relieve the pain
But there is a voice inside me
Saying you`d better walk away
And i take just a little
I, oh to relieve the pain
We get high
Some things never change
But a voice inside
Reminds me there must be,
Be better way
