John F. Kennedy (sampler):

The artist, however faithful to his personal vision of reality, becomes the last champion of the indivi He has, as Frost said, a lover's guarrel with the world

In pursuing his perceptions of reality

He must often sail against the currents of his time

This is not a popular role

Yet in retrospect, we see how the artist's fidelity has strengthened the fibre of our national life If sometimes our great artists have been the most critical of our society

It is because their sensitivity

And their concern for justice, which must motivate any true artist Makes him aware that our Nation falls short of its highest potential

I see little of more importance to the future of our country and our civilization than full recognition of art is to nourish the roots of our culture

Society must set the artist free to follow his vision wherever it takes him

We must never forget that art is not a form of propaganda, it is a form of truth

For poets, there is nothing worse for our trade than to be in style

In free society art is not a weapon and it does not belong to the spheres of polemic and ideology.

The highest duty of the writer, the composer, the artist is to remain true to himself

And to let the chips fall where they may

[Kid Cudi:]

Hey let's have some fun this time!
