

Kina Grannis, Walk On

there's nothing more to say when its over could wait another day, but there's no more so please stop coming back to the matter

untie that little string on your finger and let it swim away in the water and please resist the urge to dive under

walk on my friend walk on there is no need to linger let it go go on my friend go on and do what you need to
to get you to where you need theres nothing you can do when you tire of things that you one loved but no longer and please don't hide the tears with your laughter

release the little bird on your shoulder its hard now but its harder when she's older and please don't change your mind she'll go faster

hiding under the table like I did when I was small and scared it's a ways away from places I should clearly be instead but I've been busy finding places that exist inside my head
