

Kip Winger, Two Lover's Stand

Endlessly I gaze through the window pane
My loneliness is lost somewhere between the pleasure and the pain
And I try to believe time will tell
While you remain frozen between your honor and emotion

And here two lovers stand
Caught between the fire and the other side of make-believe Too afraid of letting go for fear the honesty will show

And here two lovers stand
Resisting the compromise you feel it denies you
A long awaited freedom

But there's one thing you forget unless you haven't noticed yet I'm just as scared as you and I can't escape both points of view

And here two lovers stand
Caught between the fire
and the other side of make-believe Though you try to hide behind a stare
I know that you're in there
And here to lovers stand

I know why you're asking yourself if I really mean everything I say
Or will I just turn and walk away

But how would you defend the felling that I believe in the light that you're shining on me and the silent affection hiding in this helpless separation

And here two lovers stand
Caught between the fire
and the other side of make-believe Too afraid of letting go for fear the honesty will show
And here two lovers stand

And here two lovers stand
Caught between the fire
and the other side of make-believe