</lyrics>

A thin, sharp needle pierces my body
Wings resting on glass release the last light

A prayer fastened in lapis
Be seen...wake up... hesitate...

Gentle fingers and a glass box, from now on the only world
Forget the sky, stop moving, drown in lamentation
A deep look, wrapped in silk, even memories are dissolving
I can no longer search...
A world dreamt by wings spread in vain

That's the door to yesterday It can't be opened
Surpass a boundary wrapped in nearly poured water

The phantom seen from inside a cocoon is Dazzling... shabby... fleeting...

A cold window and a ring of light, from now on the only world
A dull pain pressed hard, before I knew it intoxicated me
If time stoppes like this, that is fine and I close my eyes
A denying arm,
That world settled in my soul, as if to riddicule me

A prayer fastened in lapis
Be seen...wake up... hesitate...

Eternal beauty and a glass room, from now on the only world
A wound in my anguished heart opens, brought back again
Scattered silver, violated soul, the mystery sought that day
Falling now
A world dreamt by wings spread in vain
