

Koufax, Living Alone

I'm not up for going out.
At least not with the current crowd that you're hanging out with.
And this is just to prove a point
without saying it out loud.
You said we'd need to leave town.
And I'm not gonna dignify
that question with an answer.
No, I'm not gonna dignify
that question with an answer.
As there are not too many things
in that I think you won't understand.
As there are not too many things
in that I think you won't understand.
I think I have the right to grow.
And that derives from living alone.
I think I have the right to grow.
I'm sorry if I haven't said I'm sorry to you.
That was coming later.
And I'm sorry if things haven't started to improve.
That I promise is never... assume.
And that's the only price for living alone.