

Kristen Barry, Ordinary Life

And I shed my soul, feel it kneeling down I'm clutching my faith, pull it tightly around you're moving your mouth, but you don't make a sound but I feel the walls slowly tearing down heel to toe take you from my side in and out every breath divides my eyes to your head, I can't go the distance but when you go you take me in an instant but in this life, I'll give it time cause it's always swimming up from behind it'll be alright, it will be fine cause it's nothing more than ordinary life So I'll show you my sins, show me all your scars as we settle in it's written in the stars your watery eyes got me simply floating and my weak heart is swimming with devotion but in this life, I'll give it time
cause it's nothing more than ordinary life
