

Krister Linder, Ghostfriend

in the darkness of electric nights
i was lost in time and blinding lights in cities of a billion dreams searching for the grail in gutters all around the world

from the silence of the boundless night
we descend in time emerge in light pilgrims of the one to come and awaken in us all
all around the world

then like a flash from a clearblue sky i saw it all, i saw it all
and in a blink of an eye
i lost it all, i lost it all and it was from then on i knew that i was nothing more than a ghost in the night

from the heart of earth to the edge of sky i would search for my self in fears and lies in a race against the clock to fulfill my destiny
all around the world

then like a flash from a clearblue sky
i saw it all, i saw it all
and in a blink of an eye
i lost it all, i lost it all
and it was from then on i knew that i
was nothing more
than a ghost in the night

since the dawn of days our souls entwined like a braid of fates a web of lives stretching from the first of us 'til the stars have all burned out all around the world