

Kristian Valen, Hideaway

we're drifting away we're drifting away barely afloat where is the faith now? where is the faith when we need it the most?
let's run away never look back I won't let them find us hideaway just close your eyes now and someday the daylight will find us anyway always misunderstood they never cared to look beyond and they did what they could to keep us down and far apart and they painted a picture of us and of how we were supposed to be hideaway just close your eyes now and someday everything will be over hideaway forget the rest of the world they don't understand they only see what they want to anyway just close your eyes now and hideaway we were never welcomed in we were never welcomed in to join just meant to be observed they won't be laughing when we're gone