

Kristin Hoffmann, On Fire

Take down the pictures from the wall
No use in turning memories through your head
Clean between the cracks in the floor
Shake the familiar scent from your bed
From your bed, and your head

'Cause if I offered you my life
I'd be on fire in your love
And if I promised you my heart
I'd be on fire, live on fire
Don't you know, don't you know?

Make believe that nothing ever was
Dream of a better place where it's warm
Walk down the streets with open eyes
Put on a smile for all the ladies
Put on a smile for all the ladies
Smile smile smile

'Cause if I offered you my life
I'd be on fire in your love
And if I promised you my heart
Oh no
And if I stayed with you tonight
I'd dance like fire in your arms
But that won't make these feeling right

Lay down the bitter choices
Save your anger for the morning
When the sun breaks let it soak you
Let it take you, make you holy, love
Don't you know?

'Cause if I offered you my life
I'd be on fire in your love
And if I promised you my heart
Oh no
And if I stayed with you tonight
I'd dance like fire in your arms
But that won't make these feelings right
Oh no
