

Kristine Sa, The Last Goodbye

(Here. Here are my last words for you
Here is the last time we say goodbye
This is a promise I will never forget

Save a few dreams for the next affair
Keep a little passion for someone else
This is the last song I will sing for you)

I can't keep holding something that isn't even there
Like my hands can't hold the midnight air
This is the sweetest kind of bitter I've ever tasted in my life
This is my last goodbye
This is my last goodbye

(Tomorrow I want to forget your name
Tomorrow I wish to forget tonight
And every night I've cried
Because of you I'm undone)

I can't keep holding something that isn't even there
Like my hands can't hold the midnight air
This is the sweetest kind of bitter I've ever tasted in my life
This is my last goodbye

This is my last
Chance to let go
Of a love that I know
Will destroy me in the end (Waiting and waiting and I can't even remember for who)
Night after night I am haunted by (that voice) tell me (do you, do you remember us?)
Was I imagining?

I can't keep holding something that isn't even there
Like my hands cannot hold the midnight air
This is the sweetest kind of bitter I've ever tasted in my life
This is my last goodbye
This is my last goodbye
