

Kristy Thirsk, Indifference

(Leeb/Rosse/Thirsk)

take this rose, i promise it won't die before we fade to a pre-tensed goodbye it fits inside your palm as if to say a delicate hole could be made if you're still afraid indifference, hope you find me and then say you'll only, only always promise the same cold heart travelled on the ocean to spend some time i didn't make the journey to change your mind if you thought i wanted a poem in blood and wine then why did you hold me with stares but not speak your mind?
indifference, hope you find me and then
say you'll only, only always promise the same cold heart
indifference, hope you find me and then
say you'll only, only always promise the same cold heart cold heart, cold should i imagine your efforts could be sincere should i imagine the distance could come from fear indifference, hope you find me and then
say you'll only, only always promise the same cold heart
indifference, hope you find me and then
say you'll only, only always promise the same cold heart
indifference, hope you find me and then say you'll only, only always promise to be there indifference, hope you find me and then say you'll only, only always promise to be there, there for me