

Lance Miller, There Will Come A Day

There will come a day
I wont fall apart at the mention of your name
My tears will all be washed away
I hope and pray
There will come a day

There will come a time
Ill smile when you cross my mind
Regrets will all be left behind
Ill be fine
There will come a time

With memories as strong as this
How can my fragile heart resist
Drifting through the way we were back then
But as long as I keep holding on
To someone whos already gone
How can the healing begin?

As long as theres a breath in me
Apart of you will always be
The way the losing you still hurts
Somewhere near the center of my soul
I hope my humble prayer will work
Make half a man Once again feel whole

There will come a love
I hope its half as sweet as ours was
With a little help from up above
I could love again
But until then
I hope and pray
There will come a day
