

Land of Tales, Slow waters

It seems that I've lost the track of time of night and day
Daylight
aint coming back in slow tides I make my way
The two of us
got bruised and lost never reached the destination We'll never know
just what it cost
this total isolation
And when it was our time to reach the shore
the sails and the sea always tempted us more Slow waters drown my words
when the loneliness just grows Slow waters I'm lost in thoughts
I should just forgive and let go
It seems that I've
where the islands were marked
And now the waters
they are so calm
I feel the stillness in my heart
The two of us
are forever lost will never reach the destination We'll never know
just what it cost
this total isolation
the sails and the sea always tempted us more Slow waters drown my words
Slow waters I'm lost in thoughts
I should just forgive and let go
