

Larry Knox, The Awakening

I see a tear
Form in the corner of your eye
It takes me by surprise
Tenderness mixed with fear

(And the) lie
That you live with every day
Will slowly fade away
A storm cloud on a summer day

And all this talk of letting go
And all this talk of freedom
These feelings of loneliness
Inflamed by your sense of treason

(Into the) night
You'll sail uncharted seas
Guided by your heart
Twin ships from the same wood, drifting apart

(Deep) inside
No regrets, no sad refrains
No one at fault no one to blame
You wait for the rising tide

And all this talk of letting go
And all this talk of freedom
All these feelings of emptiness
Tempered by your sense of reason

Oh, the wind has changed
Out on the Cape
You've made your escape

The day begins
It's either sink or swim
Casting doubt to the wind
You face your... Awakening

(Now your) smile
Fills this empty room
Where once was gloom
A soul kept in denial

And all this talk of...letting go
And all this talk of...freedom
These feelings of ...helplessness
Fade away with the passing seasons

Now there's no going home
Now there's no going home

&lt;lyrics&gt;

```
{{SongFooter|
|fLetter = T
|album =
|artist = Larry Knox
|song = The Awakening
|video =
|audio =
|language = English
|asin =
|iTunes =
```

}}