

Lee Ryan, Broken Man

Here's a woman who did more than any woman could
Helped a man in need, and felt like he was all of hers
Gave him something to believe in when life gets him down and hurts
But with time it got harder and money weren't round no more
He'd be drinking more than he ever done before
He was broken and he'd take it out on her when he got home
Till one morning came he woke up with the bottom low
Looked around and a long time now he hadn't been alone
On the mirror was a message left with the lipstick that she owned
It said:

I don't love you no more

Sing:

I don't love you any more

The pain is too much

Just to watch you give up

And I can't love you like before

Years have passed he got himself back on his feet again

Got a job real smart

He was lonely, yes and boy was his life a mess

By one chance he met her at the superstore

His eyes willed up as his heart hit the floor

As he remembered what she wrote...

I don't love you no more

Sing:

I don't love you any more

The pain is too much

Just to watch you give up

And I can't love you like before

I don't love you no more

Sing:

I don't love you any more

The pain is too much

Just to watch you give up

And I can't love you like before
