

Legendary Jim Knopf, Hey You!

Hey you, take a look at your life
How small are you, yourself at the day?
In the heap of gigs and dates you dive
A slave of time - anything to say?

Hey you, look around you
The city is crowded, loud and hostile
You are lost in it, what can you do?
Just the move you have to walk some mile

Hey you, what does life mean
You are a piece of this little planet
It is just a little bean
A small piece of dust in the universe

Hey you, don't care about all this
Do not think about what you have to be
'Cause I know after every kiss
You are the greatest thing - for me!
