

Lehnen, Solar Drive

the solar drive that starves my eyes, never will it come.

it's never day, and it's never night.

how long must i wait?

these rotting railways, and burned out windows cast shadows on me, yet I still wait.

you break the shell around this earth and the light comes flooding in.

the dirt walls break and we all rise up.

it's time to begin.