

Leo Sayer, Dancing The Night Away

Writers: Russell Smith & James Brown

standing beside of the ocean looking out across the water everything is beautiful but I still don't feel like I oughta things we wanted, not so long ago I got 'em all now, babe but I ain't got you no more still I remember

the way you held me
and all the sweet things you used to say when we were two young lovers
dancing the night away

I remember everything dresses you used to wear you were so light and graceful you seem to float right through the air me I looked so funny dancing but you loved me anyhow now I wish I could find somebody to love me like that now

still I remember
and all the sweet things you used to say

looking out across the bay I should look for companionship but it just gets in my way all the lights are flickering out along the shore I see people dancing there but I just don't dance no more

still I remember
and all the sweet things you used to say
dancing the night away

let me see you dance
oh, babe, let me see you dance
I can still see you dance I remember you dancing
