

Linda Davis, One By One

A glass of wine and a smile
I've been meaning to do this for awhile
With the strike of a match
I'm watching your love letters
Burn and turn to ash

One by one the teardrops dry
Night by night the less I cry
Piece by piece my heart is mending
Oh-whoa
Brick by brick the road is paved
Mile by mile I roll away
From the lies that never ended
You see the memories of everything you've done
Fading one by one

I heal a little at a time
Something better's waiting on the other side
I'm not angry anymore
Yeah, in fact i'm almost grateful
You made me open up some doors

One by one the teardrops dry
Night by night the less I cry
Piece by piece my heart is mending
Oh-whoa
Brick by brick the road is paved
Mile by mile I roll away
From the lies that never ended
You see the memories of everything you've done
Fading one by one

Sometimes you've gotta walk before you run
And take the mountains as they come

One by one the teardrops dry
Night by night the less I cry
Piece by piece my heart is mending
Oh-whoa
Brick by brick the road is paved
Mile by mile I roll away
From the lies that never ended
You see the memories of everything you've done
Fading one by one
