

Linda Eder, Next Time I Love

It's over now
you walk away
after goodbye there's nothing left to say how could I miss by so much?
did I finally lose my touch?
or simply lose my way?
I guess it's true,
you live and learn,
take one last look and watch your bridges burn when did love leave me behind?
did I lose what you seldom find?
or simply lose my turn?
Next time I love
won't be too soon
Next time I fall, I'll fall beneath a kinder moon And should that moon turn cold and fade away
I'll feel the chill
but still I'll stay
Next time I love
next time I dance
next time I fall, will these old feelings stand a change?
this lonely heart and I- we'll both survive for I'll be whole, and so alive
next time I love
A little prayer
some compromise
a little time to grow a little wise and should he ask me for more will I foolishly close the door or simply close my eyes Next time I love
won't be too soon
next time I fall, I'll fall beneath a kinder moon
and should that moon turn cold and fade away
I will hold on and find a way
next time I love
Next time I love
next time I dance
next time I fall will these old feelings
stand a chance
this lonely heart and I- we'll both survive
for I'll be whole and so alive
next time I love
