

Lindsey Buckingham, Surrender The Rain

I've got to stop this obsession of revenge and fear
I've been running from everything that I once held dear
And it feels so cold; it feels like sin
I've got to stop this obsession and start living again
Oh you foolish pretender
Somebody's calling your name
Foolish pretender, oh won't you surrender
The rain, the rain?
The rain, the rain?
All those colors are changing
The chance won't come again
Foolish pretender, oh won't you surrender
The rain, the rain?
The rain, the rain?
Fly, fly away home
Fly, or you'll turn to stone
Oh, you foolish pretender
Why do you remain?
Foolish pretender oh won't you surrender
The rain, the rain?
The rain, the rain?
Silence of stone
Memory of shame
Fly away home
Surrender the rein
Surrender the reign
Surrender the rain