Lindsey Buckingham, Surrender The Rain

I've got to stop this obsession of revenge and fear I've been running from everything that I once held dear And it feels so cold; it feels like sin

I've got to stop this obsession and start living again

Oh you foolish pretender

Somebody's calling your name

Foolish pretender, oh won't you surrender

The rain, the rain?

The rain, the rain?

All those colors are changing

The chance won't come again

Foolish pretender, oh won't you surrender

The rain, the rain?

The rain, the rain?

Fly, fly away home

Fly, or you'll turn to stone

Oh, you foolish pretender

Why do you remain?

Foolish pretender oh won't you surrender

The rain, the rain?

The rain, the rain?

Silence of stone

Memory of shame

Fly away home

Surrender the rein

Surrender the reign

Surrender the rain