

Ling Kai, Facebook Photograph

I saw a photograph of you today online
Then I saw through your smile half a mile wide
You had another girl hanging off your arm
No I don't feel jealous or weird

She's rich, And smart, And pretty
And you deserve her

Push it off
Turn it down now

You are better off without me
And I knew from the day that I realised
Being with you was giving up everything love stood for

You're the boy from the table that everyone would notice
Except me
Then you took my expectations
Of what you'd be and threw them all away

We were pretending everything was alright
It's not

Push it off
Turn it down now

You are better off without me
And I knew from the day that I realized
Being with you was giving up everything love stood for

But everything reminded me
All the things that you couldn't see
All the best of you
Wasted on the very best of me
And oh how we tried for so long to make
Each other happy
Yeaaaah

You are better off without me
You are better off without me