

Magnet, Easily Undone

I feel it in my blood, I've come a bit too far
The beauty in her see-through skin has started to wear thin
So I close my bloodshot eyes and dream myself away, I know I never found it hard, to love her from afar and I see her once again, the way this drama queen was made to be seen and I know that I'm the one & only king of coming easily undone

If I could forget a little more, I would regret a little less
But I fear I'll find this kind is such that won't be suppressed Cause I feel her push & shove even when I slumber in denial
She eyes me up with raven eyes & steals a precious smile

So I see her once again the way this drama queen was made to be seen and I know that I'm the one and only king of coming easily undone